FOUR FOOTBALL GAMES SET FOR LOCAL FIELD TO-DAY.

Washington Meets Cincinnati at League Park - Blees Ties Up With Manual at the Pastime Grounds and St. Louis and C. B. C. Play Alumni Teams-Yale and Harvard Battle in Their Annual Contest To-Day.

Washington University will meet the University of Cincinnati to-day in a game which appears to be one of the most wenly balanced scheduled here this year. Each team is about the same weight, and seems to have about the same strength. Both are in good condition. The visitors ook to scale about the same total as the University of Cincinnati to-day in a game which appears to be one of the most Both are in good condition. The visitors look to scale about the same total as the ocal men, and the result should be a good game, with the interest of two cities

The visiting eleven reached St. Louis last evening and put up at the St. James. The visitors seem to be a husky aggregaion, although their coach states that the averages between 146 and 150 pounds. From an impartial inspection of the men, this seems a distinctly conserva-

Two or three of their linemen are powerful-looking, who certainly seem to total at least 175 pounds aplece. One or two of the backs look pretty close to this figure. Judging from appearances the team would verage considerably closer to 100 pounds than to the figures given by their representative, but this is mere surmise.

than to the figures given by their representative, but this is mere surmise.

Last evening the team went to the theorem and go to bed rather late. They stated that they expect to stay late in bed this morning and set their full quantity of rest in that manner.

Washington looks to have a good game here, from two standpoints. It is an evenly balanced match on account of the similarity in weight and size between the teams, and as the elevens class well together, with Washington having a shade the best of the records, it should be a hard-fought contest.

The older beys have been "kidding" their kid brothers about how easy they were going to beat them, and the "kids' have taken it so seriously that they have made wagers with their brother, Frank, that they will beat the alumni.

Since the game was arranged Frank Brockmeyer has spent all his spare time teiling his two younger brothers how much football has declined since the days when he was a star at C. B. C. The younger lost of them has promised the veteran a sound drubbing.

Al Bartliff, whom Doctor Todd considers one of the most reliable youngsters developed this season, will not be in the game to-day. He has been sick for several days and has been unable to take part in the scrimmage practice. Hodges will take his place in the line.

A victory to-day would mean much for the local eleven. It will send it into the lowa game with more confidence in itself. All the local men are in good shape, save Stuttle, who was on the side lines for a day or two, but he will be back in the game in spite of his temporary lay off.

Doctor Smith has carded the match for 3:15 o'clock at League Park, Connett and Boogher will probably be the officials. Connett has served acceptably as referree and Limpire at several games this season and is a University of Virginia man. Howard Boogher is well known in local athletic circles here and has been a popular official in the game for several years.

Blees will play Manual Training School's cial in the game for several years.

Blees will play Manual Training School's team at Pastine Park to-day and it gees without saying that the cadets should smother the local boys and win hands down. Estimates of the score seem to be in order, as the only point for conjecture. The mere appearance of the military team, however, will be of interest. It is probably the best scholastic cieven developed since the inauguration of the interscholastic league. Smith and High School players, who have bucked against the men from Macon, freely admit their ability.

Manual has had rather a hard season and has sustained some defeats with big scores rolled up against them. The chief disadvantage under which the eleven labored has been the extreme lightness of its players. The men are smaller than has been customary at Manual and the absence of avoirdupols made them lose much ground in the Smith and High games.

Blees has already won the interscholastic games.

Blees has already won the interscholastic championship. It should be able to close its season without a defeat to-day. Unless Manual has some good kickers in its back field, it hardly seems likely that the visitors will be scored on. Still, it may be that the local men have developed unexpected strength of late.

back field, it hardly seems likely that the visitors will be scored on. Still, it may be that the local men have developed unexpected strength of late.

Many well-known names of former football days will be seen in the alumni line-up which faces St. Louis University at Sportsman's Park to-day. Besides six or seven players, who have appeared on other teams before and after their term at the university, one of this season's candidates will show up in the alumni ranks.

Willis Johnson, for two seasons one of the best centers in the city, will hold down his old post in the alumni ranks.

Mohrman, another well-known player, will appear at left end. Swahlen, once a shining light on the Marion-Sims team in the days when Doctor Todd.

Shaw, for several years the leading athlete at St. Louis University, will play at right tackle. Balley will recall his Marion-Sims experiences by playing at left half. Dillon, another well-known St. Louis player, will hold down full back.

Kinsella, Wise, Schreiner, McDonald and McKeown will also re-enter the game. The array of names would have been startling had all these candidates been collected on one team in the old days of their active work-such an aggregation would have come near defeating any team produced at the college had they all been on the gridlion together.

Now, however, their long absence from the gridlion together.

Harvard and Yale will get together in their annual battle to-day. The contest will be frught out at Cambridge and does not grover harvard, local alumni of the college are pointing to the fact that the Crimson had numerous names in its lineup that did not belong on its first team and they predict that the game was no true test of Harvard's strength.

This latter claim is true. Harvard undoubtedly is stronger than that game would indicate. Whether it is strong enough to hold its own with Yale is another story. But the Harvard football followers are not giving vent to the gloomy expressions customary at the Cambridge institution prior to the Yale game.

"Of course, while this game is merly a preliminary work out for the Thanksgiving struggle with the St. Louis University eleven we expect a hard rub," continued Doctor Todd.

are some of the former star Rugby players of the city.

Theodoric Bland, Frank Brockmeyer, Longhotti, McGrail, Al Brockmeyer and Joe Nutz are among the better-known players on the team. In his day, and it is not so long ago, either, Bland was one of the fastest men on the Western gridlron. His playing gave to the C. B. C. eleven an enviable reputation.

Frank Brockmeyer also was a star of the first magnitude when he was at himself. So was his brother, A. Brockmeyer. Opposed to the two older brothers of the Brockmeyer family will be another pair of Brockmeyers, the younger members of that famous family of football players. With the four Brockmeyers in the contest the game should be worth going to see.

Boston, Mass., Nov. 20.—With Yale men "broke," as a result of the buildog's encounter with the tiger on last Saturday, and with Harvard men holding out for odds of 3 and even 4 to 1, the football odds of 3 and even 4 to 1, the football teams of the Old Ell and the Crimson will go into their annual gridiron battle tomorrow carrying about as small an amount of money as was ever wagered on an important football game. One of the most typical features of modern gridiron contests is thus, to a large extent, eliminated from to-morrow's fray. Several bets at 3 to 1 on Yale were recorded, but by far the largest amount of the money put up was staked on the score. Thousands of dollars were wagered at evens that Yale would not defeat Harvard by more than three touchdowns. Scarcely any one could be found willing to bet that the crimson would not score. Certain it is that to have Harvard whip her on top of old Nassau would be the bitterest pill she ever had to swallow, and every man on the blue eleven will fight to the last ounce there is in him to avoid that disgrace. Only once before, in 188, has Yale been defeated by both Princeton and Harvard in the same year.

MASONS HONOR GRAND INSPECTOR.

Banquet Tendered to Martin Col lins on Golden Anniversary as Member of Order.

In commemoration of his fiftieth year as Mason, the Ancient and Accepted Scottish Rite Masons of St. Louis, at the Scottish Rite Cathedral, Seventeenth and Locust streets, last night, gave a testieign grand inspector general of the order. Three hundred Masons, many of them from out of the city, gathered in the banquet-room of the cathedral to celebrate the Masonic and golden jubilee of the in-spector general. Among the guests from a distance were Congressman James D. Richardson, sovereign grand commander, ranking Mason of the world.

The occasion was a Masonic love feast, and the testimonial followed the completion by a class of fifty-one of the instruction that leads up to the thirty-second Masonic degree.

Since Tuesday the class has been recelving instruction in Scottish Rite Masonry from Inspector General Collins and has been taken from the fourth to the thirty-second degree of Masonry, Thursday even-Stations, Abliene second degree of Masonry, Thursday even-ing final instruction was given, and last night the fifty-one candidates, with all the rights and privileges of Scottish Rite Masons, participated in the testimonial banquet to the ranking Mason of this jubanquet to the ranking Mason of this jurisdiction.

Nick Santora, who would probably have been sent against Kelley had the latter been able to scale at his former figure of lit pounds, will go eight rounds will young Griffith in the seemi-wind-up at 114. Billy Trueman and Eddie Randell will go six rounds at 125 pounds.

Trueman has often appeared here in pre-liminaries at the West End Club, Randon and Company once or twice. He is said to possess considerable ability.

Benny Tero and Kild Smith, both of this city, will meet in a six-round go at 118 pounds. The first both of this city, will meet in a six-round go at 118 pounds. The first both is set for 8.39 and as the matches are scheduled to continue for thirty rounds, they will fill in the entire evening.

None but mes, the both affair being in the nature of a subscription. The first both affair being in the rive will be to enforce the rules while the men are fighting, while the hidges will decide the question of supremacy.
